Objection Raised to Its Giving Place to Corporation Commission.

The matter of locating the offices of the Corporation Commission is likely to precipitate a great fight. This is cer-tain if there is any likelihood of the commission insisting on having the offices of the Commissioner of Agriculture in the Library building.

It is learned that two members of the commission are particularly anxious to have the rooms in the Library building now occupied by the Commissioner of Agriculture, the exhibit room of State's resources, and two rooms of the State Chemist's laboratory. They want the handsome exhibit room for the court of the commission. The country members of the Legislature are going to kick vigorously if the Commissioner of Agriculture and his department are moved. Already many members of the Legislature hase expressed themselves as vigorously opposed to the removal. They say their constituents in the country have gotten accustomed to coming to the Library, when they come to Richmond. Farmers are not very familiar with eity localities, but they are in the habit of going to the State Library building and feel at home there and in the Capitol Square. To put the department elsewhere, they argue, would have the offect of estranging the farmers.

They say again that the Department of Agriculture is established and is of great value to the Commonwealth, and never so much as it is to-day. Anything affecting it would have direct influence on the service it is doing the State.

GUILT OF SANDRIDGE

Is Solely Responsible for the Death of Miss Morris.

HE IS LIKELY TO RECOVER

But Few New Facts Brought Out in the Inquest Held Yesterday by the Coroner-Funeral of the Young Victim.

Although Coroner Taylor yesterday empannelled a jury and into the violent death of Miss Nannie Morris, who was shot Sunday night by Alfred Sandridge, who afterwards attempted suicide, little definite as to the real cause of the tragedy was brought out, although several witnesses were examined.

As has been before stated, the deed seems to have been prompted by jealousy growing out of an acquaintance Miss Morris had with another young man. This, coupled with certain remarks the young lady is alleged to have made, was After hearing the evidence the jury required only a few minutes o make up a verdict, placing the blame upon the shoulders of Sandridge, and when he is sufficiently recovered to stand trial he FRIENDS PRESENT.

will be arruigned for the crime.

FRIENDS PRESENT.

The inquest was held in a house at No. 2423 Carrington Street, where the body of Miss Morris was removed last Monday. Friends of the young lady live here, and yesterday a small crowd assembled for the purpose of hearing the testimony that was to be adduced. But so far as solving the mystery and clearing up the rumors that have been affoat since the tragedy it really amounted to naught.

Miss Bertic Morris, a sister of the murdered girl, was probably the most important witness. She stated in effect that Sandridge was angry because he had been informed that the dead girl, the young lady upon whom he had been lavishing his attention, had spoken of him as a "soft-headed fool."

"That man shot my sister because she refused to become his wife, and because he thought she had made a certain remark about him," said Miss Morris. She continued by saying that recently Sandridge had given her sister a ring, after which it was reported to him by a tattler that she had exhibited the piece of jewelry, saying: "See what that softheaded fool gave me."

This alleged remark seems to have an agered Sandridge, and he approached Miss Morris with an accusation of having made such a statement. She denied having said anything of the kind, hit still the man was suspicious. This seems to have set him worrying, and finally he resolved upon murder.

CRIME PREMEDITATED.

All of the details of the affair were rehearsed before the jury, and from the

CRIME PREMEDITATED.

All of the details of the affair were rehearsed before the jury, and from the statements of certain witnesses there seems but little doubt that the murder was premediated, for Sandridge carried a pistol with him on the night of the murder and attempted suicide. This he had never before done, thus showing that he went fixed for tzouble.

Sunday morning before the tragedy he took a car to Lakeside, remaining away until dinner. That afternoon he rode to Reservoir Park. His action showed clearly that he was laboring under a great nervous strain. The murder followed.

At the Virginia Hospital asst night it was stated that the condition of Sandridge was much improved, and that he would probable survive the wound in his breast. He rested much easier yesterday, but so far as is known has neveryet spoken of the tragedy in which he was a principal actor.

The body of Miss Morris was sent to Powhatan yesterday at noon, where later in the afternoon the funeral was conducted from the residence of a relative. The interment was in the family burying ground.
